De-manufacturing Services

Metech International offers disassembly and de-manufacturing services to clients who need to recover parts or specific materials from obsolete or non-functioning equipment. This is part of Metech's Accountable Resource Management® (ARM®) protocol.

We have the ability to disassemble electronic equipment and either recycle it completely, resell specific components, or send parts back for your reuse.

Many of our clients find that recovery of key components not only cuts down on the environmental impact of their products, but also saves them money by utilizing these parts in new or reconditioned equipment.

Our technicians are professionally trained and take care not to damage equipment that will be sent back to the manufacturer. Our employees are OSHA safety trained and work in a clean and healthy environment.

Useable equipment is handled carefully and items that are specified for recycling ARE recycled and do not end up in a landfill.

Rely on Metech for your disassembly, de-manufacturing and component recovery needs.
